

Endpoint Protection Platform

"Antivirus is a company's first line of defence."

Antivirus is still an essential part of cybersecurity and has become smarter alongside the increasingly sophisticated threats that need to be mitigated. Antivirus is no longer bound to detection via signature files, and now also relies on machine learning, global threat feeds and sandboxing to compete with today's zero-day threats.

Antivirus from DRS is your first line of defence:

Together with our vendor partners, DRS provides the most competitive on-premise and cloud antivirus solutions to your environment. We will help you secure your endpoints with the latest technology, ensuring that it fits your organisation's specific needs. We will also upskill your staff to ensure that they are more security-savvy.
